

Working Class Artists

I can't remember when I first saw Kathy Burke on TV but I remember I sat up a bit because she spoke like me. And not just when she was acting, but in interviews. And she swore like me. She's an amazing actor, great director and a bit of a hero of mine.

<https://twitter.com/kathyburke>

I saw Andrea Luka Zimmerman's film Art Class last year and it was so good I had to go and watch it again afterwards.

Andrea grew up in Germany in public housing - equivalent to council estates over here.

Her film was smart, funny and made me cry because it was like finally recognising something you've been searching years to find the words for.

Andrea also has a cute dog

<https://fugitiveimages.org.uk/andrea-luka-zimmerman-s-cv>

https://www.instagram.com/user_name_valid/

Stacy Makishi is a Live Artist from Hawaii, but lives in London

Disclosure: I've worked with Stacy in my day-job (that's often the true test of how a person is).

She is great - funny, honest, caring, swears, has made me cry (in a good way) and makes poop jokes often.

<https://www.stacymakishi.co.uk/>

All the other artists involved in this project.

All those who'll be contributing in the future.

You are all amazing!